Heartsease.

Of all the bonny buds that blow
In bright or cloudy weather,
Of all the flowers that come and go
The whole twelve months together,
This little purple pansy brings
Thoughts of the sweetest, saddest things.

I had a little lover once,
Who used to give me posies:
His eyes were blue as hyacinths,
His lips were red as roses,
And everybody loved to praise
His pretty looks and winsome ways.

The girls that went to school with me
Made little jealous speeches,
Because he brought me royally
His biggest plums and peaches,
And always at the door would wait
To carry home my books and slate.

"They couldn't see"—with pout and fling—
"The mighty fascination
About that little snub-nosed thing;
To win such admiration;
As if there weren't a dozen girls
With nicer eyes and longer curls!

And this I knew as well as they,
And never could see clearly
Why more than Marion or May
I should be loved so dearly.
So once I asked him, why was this?
He only answered with a kiss.

Until I teased him—"Tell me why—
I want to know the reason;"
When from the garden-bed close by,
(The pansies were in season)
He plucked and gave a flower to me,
With sweet and simple gravity.

"The garden is in bloom," he said,
"With lilies pale and slender,
With roses and verbenas red,
And fuschias, purple splendor;
But over and above the rest,
This little heartsease suits me best."

"Am I your little heartsease then?"
I asked with blushing pleasure;
He answered yes! and yes again—
Heartsease, and dearest treasure;
That the round world and all the sea
Held nothing half so sweet as me!

I listened with a proud delight
Too rare for words to capture,
Nor ever dreamed what sudden blight
Would come to chill my rapture,
Could I foresee the tender bloom
Of pansies round a little tomb?

Life holds some stern experience,
As most of us discover,
And I've had other losses since
I lost my little lover;
But still this purple pansy brings
Thoughts of the saddest, sweetest things.

Miscellaneous.

DISAPPOINTING A LANDLORD.

A landlord by the name of Screwler had managed to have the stage stop at his house for the passengers to dine, by allowing the driver, Lewis, a fip a head for each dinner eaten, and the assurance that Lew's grog should not cost him a cent; but as the tavern was ten miles from Parker's, where the passengers had formerly dined, and they did not reach it till half past three, the landlord discovered that, what with the per centage to Lewis, and the keen appetites of the passengers, who had tasted nothing from six o'clock, he was "advancing backwards" instead of improving his purse by the operation.

The two worthies held a consultation, in which it was agreed that Lewis should be behind his time in arriving and the landlord late with his dinner, so that as soon as they had fairly commenced operations the horn should be blown and the passengers hurried off on the plea that the stage could wait no longer.

This game was played for some time with success; the hungry passengers grumbled and scolded Lew for an hour or so each day; but he pocketed the fips and laughed in his sleeve.

It happened about this time, that as the grumbling passengers were about leaving Parker's the old dining house, a stout, hearty-looking man, comfortably dressed, presented himself at the coach door and took a vacant place on the middle seat.—Ther were three ladies on the back seat, three men on the front seat, and now, that an additional passenger had been taken in, three on the middle seat, making it a full stage load. The new passenger was quite chatty and sociable, and well acquainted with men and things, and full of anecdote. He proved quite an agreeable companion. But even his versatility and good nature failed to interest his fellow-sufferers long. Hunger was too keen.

At last Screwler's fifth-rate house was gained, and after a long and tantalizing delay dinner was announced. The gentlemen with ladies had barely found time to help them, and then got clever-a going themselves to the tune of the fork, when "Too-too-too-oto-o!" rang the driver's horn at the door of the dining-room, followed by his loud

"Coach right off, gentlemen! Take your seats, quick!"

Up sprang the passengers and scrambled off, some swearing and some too much under the fear of being left behind to think of anything else but getting inside the stage.

But there was one among them who was so much engaged that he did not seem to hear or see anything of all this until another blast rang into the door and the landlord, Screwler, touched him on the shoulder, with

"The stage is going, sir."

"But I've not half finished my dinner yet," returned the passenger, who proved to be the one taken in at Parker's looking up in surprise and sputtering forth portions of food from his well-filled mouth as he spoke.

"I'm sorry for that sir," returned Screwler, blandly. "But I can't help it. The driver will be off in a moment. He is behind his time now, and must be in by a certain hour, or he will be discharged."

"Too-too-too too-o-o-o!" screamed the horn, louder than usual, followed by

"All-on-board!" from the driver, who instantly disappeared.

"He's getting on his box now, sir, and will start in a moment," urged the landlord.

"And I've paid for my dinner! Too bad, too bad! Well, hand me back my money; I never pay for what I do not receive."

"I can't do that, sir. Sorry for you, but the fault is not mine. My dinner has been all prepared, and you're welcome to eat it."

As matters were thus pressing, the passenger did not stop long to parley.—Drawing from his pocket a clean white handkerchief, neatly folded as it had left the ironing table, he hastily spread it open on the table, and turning into it a fresh dish of boiled eggs, then two or three plates of bread, with sundry little nicknackeries, he tied it up quickly, muttering to himself all the while in an undertone. Then seizing a turkey in one hand, two roasted chickens and his well-filled handkerchief in the other, he bowed to landlord and said—

"Good-day, sir! I'll finish my dinner on the road!"

Screwler was too much surprised and confounded to interfere.

Thus equipped, the passenger made his appearance at the coach door, and crowding in, took his place on the middle seat; the ladies twittered, the men laughed or looked grave according to their humor, but our hungry passenger seemed in no way disconcerted.

"Won't you have a dish, and a knife and fork!" asked the landlord, who had recovered his senses, and came forward, a few moments after the traveller had seated himself, with the articles, presenting them as he spoke with a mock, polite air, intending to dash our hero. But he was not to be thrown off his guard.

"Thank you kindly!" he said, bowing as he received the dish and carving instruments. "I had forgotten these."

As soon as the pair of chickens and the turkey were adjusted on the spacious dish, which the landlord already repented having put in the incorrigible traveler's way, the latter sang out at the top of his voice: "All right, driver! Go ahead!"

Crack went the whip, and off rolled the stage, leaving Boniface vexed, angry, and yet amused at the ludicrousness of the whole scene.

As for the passengers, all shrunk instinctively from the bread, meat, etc., which had been so liberally provided, while the ladies turned up their pretty noses, and ejaculated in a soft, low voice:

"Disgusting!"

"Hold on here stranger, will you!" said he of the chickens and turkey, "this confounded stage jolts at such a rate that I can't carve my turkey." Indicating with his fingers as he spoke, on one side of the spacious dish upon which reposed his provender.

The individual thus addressed could do no less than obey the request; and then the same was made to his other neighbor who lent the required aid.

"And now, stranger, do you hold this bread bag!" extending his clean, well-filled handkerchief to a passenger before him. He was, in answer to this request, politely relieved of his bread, eggs, etc.

The dish was now supported on his knees and firmly held there by his next door neighbor, who began to enjoy the joke, as did most of his other fellow-passengers. In dissecting the turkey and pair of chickens, under all the disadvantageous circumstances, he showed himself a skillful carver. The different parts were nicely separated, and laid about the dish neatly and quite temptingly. By this time the odor of the fowls had awakened into keenness the unsatisfied appetites of the whole company, who were only waiting for an invitation to help themselves. In carving, the accomplished stranger had surrounded the edge of the dish with the pieces of turkey and chicken leaving quite a space in the centre. Into this he emptied the contents of his pocket-handkerchief, consisting of a dozen or so of boiled eggs, with bread.

"Now, ladies," he said, lifting the dish and partly turning round so that it rested on the taut leathern strap that formed the moveable back of the seat, and thus was fully presented to them—"Help yourselves, I know you are hungry."

The ladies looked at the tempting exhibition, colored, and hesitated

"Don't be afraid," he urged. "Necessity knows no law."

The temptation was too great for one hungrier than the rest, who, hesitating no longer, took the wing of a chicken in one hand and a piece of bread in the other, and forthwith commenced operations, not however before she had smiled, bowed, and said a courteous "Thank you, sir."

The other two ladies followed suit quite naturally, then the men went to work in right good earnest, nor paused until turkey, chickens, bread, eggs, and all had vanished. Of course, the sauce for all this was good humer, jokes and funny sayings is no small quantity. After the eatables had fully disappeared the empty dish was cast overboard, and all hands composed themselves, in the best temper possible, with themselves, each other, and all the world, Boniface not excepted.

Two hours and a half afterwards the stage brought up at Grimes' for tea. For some time past the late dinner arrangements had not affected the appetites of the passengers as it had done at first, much to the surprise of the landlord and "agent," and not a little to his regret.—On this occasion, however, his guests seemed more inclined to laugh than to eat, and finally left the table, after having taken only one cup each, with "fixins" in proportion. The secret of this leaked out before the stage moved, of the great merriment of Grimes and the coterie in his bar-room, to whom one of the passengers related the joke. Among these was the editor of a country paper.

On the next morning the whole story appeared in print, with names, places, and all detailed with much humor. This account, Parker, who most people thought knew about as much of the whole matter as anybody, had put into the form of a hand bill, two or three of which were circulated among the passengers in every stage. Of course Screwler became aware of this fact, and did not venture again to cheat the passengers out of their dinner when they consented to eat at all. But it happened two or three times a week that a whole stage load would refuse to dine with him, and thus he came off the loser. Finally he abandoned the profitless business of dining the stages, and fell back into his old ways.

Whoever goes that road now gets a comfortable dinner, in good time, at Parker's, and should the old man feel in the humor, will have added, by way of extra fare, a graphic sketch of the sayings and doings at Screwler's, with which our readers have just been made acquainted.

Edgar A. Poe and the Juleps

John R. Thompson succeeded Edgar A. Poe as editor of the Southern Literary Messenger. Fresh from the University, well-to-do in the goods of this world, and justly proud of the position—for the Messenger then was the oldest, and certainly one of the best magazines in the Union—Thompson lived en prince in a suite of apartments in Main street. One of them, furnished handsomely as a reception-room, contained a beaufet well stocked with the choicest liquors. Into this room came one morning about eleven o'clock a handsome, very intellectual-looking man, who, bowing formally, asked if he had the pleasure of addressing Mr. John R. Thompson.

"Yes," said Mr. Thompson, who had already risen.

"My name," said the stranger, "is Poe."

It may be taken for granted that the youthful editor, who was never lacking in courtesy, gave his predecessor just such a reception as the occasion and the man required. If Thompson felt honored by the visit, Poe was more than gratified by the cordiality and unfeigned respect manifested by the young poet. The author of "The Raven" was now seated in an easy-chair. Conversation flowed freely and pleasantly, Poe of course taking the lead, and an hour or two slipped away seemingly in as many moments.

Poe rose to take leave. Thompson entreated him to remain. No, he had an engagement. As he turned towards the door, Poe's eye fell upon the beaufet with its glittering array of silver and cut-glass, and a change came over his grave, handsome face. In an animated tone he said, "Ah! you have a nice little arrangement there, Mr. Thompson. Perhaps you can give me something to drink."

"Indeed I can," said Mr. Thompson. "What will you have?"

"That depends upon what you got."

Thompson enumerated several kinds of wine, whisky, and French brandy, commending the last as very superior.

Poe chose brandy. Selecting a tumbler of the ordinary size, he lifted the decanter with steady hand and began to pour—one finger, two fingers, three fingers, four fingers, five!

Thompson became alarmed. "Excuse my seeming incivility," said he—"such it really is not, I assure you—but, Mr. Poe, are you—are you not taking a little—just a little—too much for your own good?"

"No, sir, not at all," was the reply. "I know myself thoroughly well, Mr. Thompson and can gauge myself to a hair. I have had some experience in these matters, and I have discovered about brandy, good French brandy, this remarkable peculiarity—that it is least injurious when you fill the glass as nearly full as possible, and leave room for as little water as possible." And the pouring went steadily on till the tumbler was full to the very brim. "Now a drop—just a drop—of water, if you please."

The drop of water—it was barely more than that—was added, and then, to Thompson's amazement and horror, Poe drained his glass to the bottom.

He lingered awhile, and Thompson, fearing that the brandy might tell upon his distinguished guest after he got into the street, suggested, as adroitly and respectfully as he could, that a few moments of repose on the sofa might be of service to him.

"Oh no!" said Poe: "you need have no fear for me. The brandy is nothing. I've already had thirteen juleps; and now I think I'll step across the way and get my breakfast!"

Extending his hand in farewell, he bowed stiffly and was gone.—Lippincott's Magazine.

YEARS ago into a wholesale grocery store in Boston walked a tall muscular looking, raw-boned man, evidently a fresh comer from some back town in Maine or New Hampshire. Accosting first person he met, who happened to the be the merchant himself, he asked:

You don't want to hire a man in your store do you?"

"Well," said the merchant, "I don't know; what can you do?"

"Do," said the man, "I rather guess I can turn my hand to almost anything. What do you want done?"

"Well—if I was to hire a man it would be one that could lift well, a strong, wiry fellow; one for instance that could shoulder a sack of coffee like that yonder, and carry it across the store and never lay it down."

"There now, captin'," said our countrymen, "that's just me. I can lift anything I hitch to; you can't set me. What will you give a man that can suit you?"

"I tell you," said the merchant. "If you will shoulder that sack of coffee and carry it across the store twice and never lay it down, I will hire you for a year at $100 per month."

"Done," said the stranger, and by this time every clerk in the store gathered around and were waiting to join in the laugh against the man, who walking up to the sack, threw it across his shoulder with perfect ease as it was not extremely heavy and walking with it twice across the store, went quietly to a large hook which was fastened to the wall, and hanging the sack upon it turned to the merchant and said:

"There, now, it may hang there till doom'sday; I shan't never lay it down. What shall I go about mister? Just give me plenty to do and $100 a month and its all right."

The clerks broke into a laugh, but it was out of the other sides of their mouths and the merchant, discomfited, yet sastified, kept to his agreement, and to-day the green countryman is the senior partner in the firm and worth a half-million dollars.

How Watch Springs Are Made.

The method of making mainsprings for watches as practiced in New York and other large cities, is first to cut up steel of necessary thickness into strips of the necessary breadth. These strips are then fastened by the ends in a long horizontal frame and the edges and sides of the steel are smoothed by polishers fastened between two sticks and worked by hand lengthwise on the steel, from the one end of the frame to the other. After being prepared in this manner the steel is wound closely round a wooden centre, in the same manner as a ribbon is wound on a small block, and in the process of winding one end of each strip of steel is fastened to the end of another, and a number of lengths being coiled one on top of the other. The roll of steel is then put into a furnace, the necessary heat applied, and the hot steel suddenly plunged into oil. In this condition, although the steel is hard, there is a certain amount of flexibility to it, just the same as a very thin and narrow strip of glass in elastic, which prevents the steel from breaking when the surface is being prepared for blueing, and which is done is something the same manner as smoothing the steel in the first instance, only finer polishing materials are used. The blueing is done by drawing the steel in straight lengths over an alcohol lamp or a hot piece of metal, which renders it perfectly elastic, and afterwards it is cut to the proper lengths and the eyes for the hooks put in, and then coiled into a spiral form on a tool, the same in principle as the tool used by watchmakers in putting mainsprings in their barrel or boxes.—Horological Journal.

SOMETHING ABOUT BABIES.—There are fourteen thousand babies in the great Hospitol Dom, in Moscow. Some of them are foundlings, some the offsprings of naval and military officers, and many belong to merchants and tradespeople of the city. They are fed, washed, and dressed with the utmost regularity. Each nurse in a ward has a specific duty to perform. Take the ward having the week-old babies: One nurse will do nothing from morning till night but undress babies, another will dress them up and toss them away, while another will follow and nurse them. So they go up and down the sides of the ward, each baby being washed, nursed, and dressed a certain number of times each day. The little things learn to like this treatment. Sometimes nurse gives them a toss of several feet into the beds, or from one woman to another, and the little things will laugh and screw up the funniest smiles. After being nursed they are rolled up tight like an Indian baby and laid away.

Many good, respectable mothers, whose husbands are in the army or navy, or even well-to-do tradesmen, send their offsprings here to be cared for. The treatment is so superior that by far fewer babies die than would die if left to the best care of a fond mother.

The castaways are trained up by the government—the males becoming officers in the army and navy (O Fifth avenue belles!), and the females becoming actresses and assistants in choruses in the great theatres—all drifting into social circles above the ex-serfs. One of the most agreeable officers in Moscow is a captain of infantry, who was once a motherless foundling.

A KENTUCKIAN and a Yankee were riding through the woods, the former on a fine black horse, and the Yankee on an inferior animal. The latter wanted to make a 'swap,' but he did not see how he was to do it. At last he thought of a plan.

His horse had been taught to sit down like a dog whenever he was touched with the spurs. Seeing a wild turkey the Yankee made his horse perform this trick, and asserted that he was pointing game as was his custom. The Kentuckian rode in the direction indicated by the horse's nose, and up rose a turkey. That settled the matter; the trade was made, and the saddles and horses were exchanged. After a time they came to a deep and rapid stream, over which the black horse carried his rider with ease. But the Kentuckian on the Yankee's old beast, found great difficulty in getting over, and when he had reached the middle of the stream he was afraid the horse would allow himself to be carried away, and so endeavored to spur him up to more vigorous action. Down sat the old horse on his haunches.

'Look here!' shouted the enraged and partially submerged Kentuckian to the Yankee on the other side of the stream, 'What does all this performance mean?'

'I want you to know stranger,' cried the Yankee, preparing to ride away, 'That that 'ere hoss will pint fish jist as well as it will fowl.—Hearth and Home.

Hints to Young Men who go a Sparking.

These words of wisdom are from a paper in the last number of the London Society:

"After all, in looking out for a wife, a man must consider how she will show at the fireside, rather than at parties. You can learn so much of literary and æsthetic tastes, from the favorite books are always on hand, the music that is that regularly sung, the kind of associations, and the general order of tastes. It is by far the best way of getting up a flirtation, which is not unpleasantly done under the parental eyes when such eyes are kindly and benignant. Love-making is an uncommon pleasant employment for the winter nights. You may talk of the perils of young men when they come up to town; but there is no better safeguard than giving such young fellows the associations of home and sweet woman. Parents make an immense mistake is taking too severely monetary a view of a young fellow's prospects. I never knew a young fellow under ever so dun a cloud, who with purpose and ability, could not work out his way into the sunlight. Better even the long engagement, or the early marriage, than many other suppositions that might be put."

The Grant Convention.

No political assemblage ever met in this country, whose proceedings were so thoroughly cut and dried beforehand, as those of the Convention which met in Philadelphia last week to go through the form of nominating Grant for President. The noble army of office holders were in full force and applauded to the echo all the speeches praising the great Gift-taker who owns them. All the political renegades who have sold out their principles for pap were enthusiastic in their fulsome harangues for the Presidential controller of the meeting. As a well managed piece of political machinery the Convention was a decided success, but as a true indication of the best quality of Republican feeling throughout the country it was a gigantic farce. But one man dared to raise his voice against the modern Cæsar and he did so when leaving the Convention in which he could find no freedom of will allowed. The firing of salutes in different cities in honor of the result was a part of the plan to evidence popular sympathy and might have taken place the day before as far as knowledge of the results was concerned. Certain papers did contain what purported to be telegraphic dispatches announcing the nomination a day before it occurred.

The Adjournment.

Congress adjourned on Monday night after a stormy session in both Houses. In the Senate Zack Chandler made some ridiculous statements concerning a Democratic and a Liberal Republican conspiracy, but refused to give the name of any Senator connected therewith. The impression was general that there was no truth whatever in the charge.

The uproar in the House was worse than usual, the fight being over the Enforcement Amendment (the Bayonet Law) to the appropriation bill. Mr. Bingham stated that the opposition to the bill on the ground of unconstitutionality "was as disreputable, dishonorable, and damning as the treason inaugurated by the bayonet twelve years ago," whereupon Mr. Morgan his colleague promptly told him that he lied, a remark which, although true, was not parliamentary. After a prolonged squabble the bill was passed, but shorn of its most objectionable features. As is usual, the country will rejoice that the adjournment has taken place.

The McClure-Geary Case.

It is about time that Radical editors in this State should stop printing falsehoods about the decision of the Senate Committee in the contested election case of McClure vs Gray. At all events they should read the report before printing false and stupid articles about it. The Committee did not reject whole polls or divisions simply upon proof that some fraudulent votes had been given in them, or that irregularities had taken place at the election. They did not imitate the example of Republican judges in Philadelphia and of Radical election committees in the Legislature in this respect, but expressly endorsed the sound and just doctrine of the Dechert case, announced at the previous session that neither the misconduct of election officers in conducting an election nor the fraud of a few persons in casting votes, should absolutely disfranchise all the citizens, or render the election void.

It is true that the Committee rejected certain division returns because they were proved to be fraudulent, but the sitting member was permitted to prove his actual vote in those divisions and introduced evidence for that purpose. He only failed because he had not a case and the true result in the Senatorial district was ultimately vindicated by the report against the gross frauds which had been perpetrated in the returns.

The Philadelphia Press still keeps advising its party to change its candidates, or else inevitable defeat awaits them. In its issue of the 5th inst, it says:" But unfortunately we have a State election in October, when we shall have to vote for Governor, Auditor General, a Supreme Judge, and a Legislature to choose a United States Senator for six years from the 4th of March, 1873. Foreseeing the importance of this initial contest, The Press appealed, six months anterior to our State Convention, for the very best nominations for State officers. We stated, over and over again, that, however strong Grant might be, he was not strong enough to pull through a set of bad State and local nominations. Events in New York proving unspeakable corruption among the Democrats, and the conviction of offenders in our ranks in Philadelphia, intensified the justice and vindicated the necessity of this warning. We pleaded not only for our own welfare as a State, not only for our own honor as a people, but for the re-election of General Grant. It was all in vain. The State Convention selected candidates for State officers, two of whom were openly repudiated by a number of Republican papers and in a number of Republican counties. For refusing to endorse these nominations The Press has been loudly and perseveringly slandered as the secret enemy of President Grant's re-election.

We speak for no man or men. We echo no resentment. We plead for the Republican party of Pennsylvania, long oppressed by this most odious Personal Rule. We plead for Grant, whose great name is employed to frighten timid men into submission. We do not ask that candidates from the disfranchised Republicans of the State shall be substituted for Hartranft and Allen, but we demand that our success in November shall not be imperilled by our defeat in October. General Hartranft was a brave soldier, and, we believe, is an honest man; but does he not know that there is a deep and determined purpose among the Republicans of many portions of the State not to support him? Need we tell him and his friends of the sentiment in Philadelphia, Lancaster, Chester, Luzerne, Wyoming, Alleghany, Cambria, Venango, Lebanon, York, and other counties? They refused to be warned in January; will they not be admonished in June? The candidate for Auditor General, Col. Allen, of Warren, is, we are glad to believe, ready to retire, like a good Republican, before a demonstration even more serious. The Republican party is in a crisis, and nothing can save it but bold and unselfish action."

The Reading Convention.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer, (Rep.)

Mr. Buckalew is a gentleman of very sterling abilities and thorough political experience. His character and reputation are alike excellent, and his nomination is a recognition of the emphatic demand made by the people of all parties that the candidates put forward for offices of honor and responsibility shall possess the requisite qualifications and command the support of the community which they are likely to be called upon to represent.

From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin (Rep.)

The Democracy of the State of Pennsylvania have made their choice wisely, presenting candidates of much personal popularity, ability and political strength. Mr. Buckalew is one of the keenest minds of the Pennsylvania Democracy, a shrewd, sagacious political manager, of fine intellectual powers, and a formidable antagonist in any position which he may occupy. On their judicial ticket the Democrats place Chief Justice Thompson, and so present a ticket of high personal respectability.

From the Philadelphia Press (Rep.) June 1st.

The Democratic State Convention concluded its labors yesterday by the nomination of Wm. Hartley, Esq., for Auditor General. From what we can hear of Mr. Hartley, the nominee for Auditor General, he is a man of unimpeachable honesty, who has never held office, and who at home commands the undivided respect of all classes and both parties.

The feature of the convention yesterday was the speech of Mr. Buckalew accepting the nomination. It reads like the address of a patriot, and carries us back to the early days of the Republic when intelligence and integrity were the standards of fitness for office. His sentiments are liberal, and his promises fair. Like Mr. Greeley, he desires to represent the people and not a party, and had he not all his life worshipped at the shrine of the latter, the State might echo his wish with a wonderful unanimity. In the presence of his nomination, his ability, his honesty and his manly speech yesterday, the duty of the Republicans of Pennsylvania is plain. The prestige of Mr. Buckalew's name is a powerful weapon in the hands of the Democracy; but, unless the Republican party be used to defeat itself, it will be broken and defeated.

From the Allentown News (Ind.)

Mr. Buckalew is of the conservative school of politics, although he strongly advocates the cumulative principle in voting and has devoted much study and considerable time to the propagation of this idea. Senator Buckalew bears an irreproachable character throughout his State among men of both parties, and it is agreed that he will poll a large share of the republican vote as against Hartranft irrespective of the liberals who will probably indorse him.

From the Pittston Comet.

The Democratic State Convention placed in nomination Charles R. Buckalew, of Columbia county, for Governor and renominated Judge James Thompson for Supreme Judge. As acceptable candidates to the masses of independent republican voters, the ticket is head and shoulders above that of the republican party in ability, integrity and popular favor. Mr. Buckalew is the author of the cumulative voting principle, is liberal and honest. Mr. Thompson is popular all over the State. Luzerne county will probably repudiate Hartranft, Allen and Mercur by about three thousand majority for the Democratic ticket.

From the Phœnixville Messenger.

The Democratic State Convention met and nominated for Governor, Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, now a member of the State Senate, and late Senator of the United States. Mr. Buckalew is one of the ablest leaders of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania and a man of high reputation for integrity. Other men may be more personally popular, but Mr. Buckalew is probably as strong a candidate as the Democracy could have. Judge Thompson's nomination to the Supreme Court was a foregone conclusion. Of his abilities there is no need to speak.

From the Philadelphia Sunday Despatch, (Ind.)

The nominations are good. Indeed, the candidates proposed are much better than those on the republican ticket. Buckalew is far beyond Hartranft in personal character, integrity and statesmanship. No better nomination could have been made for the gubernatorial office in the ranks of the Democratic party. Mr. Hartley, the nominee for Auditor General, bears the reputation of being a capable business man; and never having held public office, or been active as a politician, he is free from the strong objections which exist against Allen on the other side. Chief Justice Thompson has been renominated for judge of the Supreme Court. He is a man of great learning and experience, possessing strength of mind and an able intellect. Upon the bench he has been a good judge, except where prejudice or political favoritism biased his feelings. Possibly no judge chosen under the elective system can be entirely impartial when the prejudices of his own friends upon public questions are in the way. Whilst, therefore, it must be candidly admitted that Judge Thompson has been perfectly satisfactory in his high office in most things which came within the sphere of his adjudication, it can only be said that the weakness which has been shown in other things was incident to human nature. On the whole, it may be said that the party could not have done better than to renominate the Chief Justice. There was no other person named in competition for the office, and any new aspirant might not have been as satisfactory.

From the Harrisburg Patriot.

The nomination of Charles R. Buckalew has already been ratified in the hearts of a great majority of the Pennsylvania people. They appreciate the ability which has marked his public career and the purity and simplicity of his private life. Whether in the Senate of his own State, or in the Senate of the nation, or as representative of the country abroad, he has distinguished himself in every position. Throughout his public life he has enjoyed the confidence and respect of the ablest men of all parties. No man is more familiar with the affairs of the commonwealth. If elected, no abuse or corruption will be permitted to nestle under his administration. There will be no public scandal job, and no greedy speculations with the money of the Commonwealth. But the government of the State will be brought back to the purity which distinguished the best administrations of the past. The Reading Convention has answered in this nomination the earnest cry of the people for reform.

From the Doylestown Democrat.

Our nominations are more than excellent. We point with pride and pleasure to Charles R. Buckalew, who heads our ticket, and ask our enemy to "match him" if they can. For ability, statesmanlike views, and purity of character he is not to be excelled. When he fills the chair of State the people can rely on an honest and upright administration of affairs. Rings will have no abiding place about the capital then, and those who fatten on public corruption will be compelled to change their location. Having sprung from the people there is naturally drawn to Mr. Buckalew the sympathies of all those who live by toil; and we predict his election with the certainty of the arrival of the second Tuesday in October. The radicals are panic stricken at his nomination, and the Philadelphia Press already concedes his election at the polls. Corruption, fraud and injustice, so long all-powerful about the State capital, tremble in advance. Mr. Buckalew will be our next governor.

From the Pottsville Standard.

Once again the Democratic party of Pennsylvania has risen to a level with the exigencies and demands of the hour. In the nomination of Hon. Charles R. Buckalew for governor, the complete and crushing defeat and extermination of radicalism in October is foreshadowed, and the redemption and political rehabilitation of the Keystone Commonwealth assured. Not only is the nomination of the distinguished statesman whose name heads the State ticket, a subject of congratulation and rejoicing, but the character, honesty and capacity of the candidates throughout insures their election by an overwhelming majority over the corrupt creatures of "rings" and rotten corporations who make up the radical State ticket. The marked contrast between the unimpeachable honesty of the candidates selected by the Reading Convention and the leprous and unclean creatures set up by Mackey, Quay & Co., is so wide and so glaring that to doubt the success of the Democracy in the campaign just opened, is to doubt the sanity of the people of this Commonwealth.

From the Carbon Democrat.

The Democratic State Convention at Reading resulted in the nomination of Mr. Buckalew as our candidate for governor, and Chief Justice Thompson for Judge of the Supreme Court. The nomination of these distinguished gentlemen, it is hardly necessary to say, insures but one result—a triumphant election. So unlike are these nominations to those of the Republican party that no intelligent citizen can for a moment hesitate to endorse and finally vote for them.

From the Erie Observer.

The next State campaign will be—Buckalew, honesty and brains vs. Hartranft, incompetency and the rings.

From the Perry County Democrat.

The Democratic press is a unit in the support of the whole ticket and the nomination of Charles R. Buckalew seems to be received by the Republican papers with a feeling akin to admiration. Indeed, a considerable number of the latter are outspoken in their praise of him and turn in disgust from the nominee of their own party for Governor.

What a tribute to integrity, honesty of purpose and manly straight-forwardness is seen in these warm and favorable responses to Buckalew's nomination! It makes one feel as if public virtue was not yet dead and that public sentiment was disposed to reward a fearless discharge of public duty. It looks as if the power of corrupt political rings had been broken and that our people may hope for a return of the days when ability, honesty and regard for the welfare of the people were deemed pre-requisites in candidates for public position.

The influence of combinations of politicians, whose sole interest in the nomination of State officers was centered in the procurement of places for those whom they could use and profit thereby, has for many years been felt in State Conventions and has worked no good to the people at large. This influence failed or was not present at Reading. The nomination of so pure and upright man as Buckalew proves this fact. A better day has dawned for the people of Pennsylvania if they will but realize the change and avail themselves of the opportunity presented to restore the old order of things at Harrisburg, when honesty and economy prevaded every department of the State government.

OUTSIDE OPINIONS.

From the Boston Post.

Mr. Buckalew's nomination as governor of Pennsylvania was the most popular movement possibly for the Democracy of the Keystone State to make, and his excellent address to the convention, accepting the distinction, furnished another proof of the sagacity and soundness of his action. He reprehended both the State and national administrations for the notorious vices which had brought them into disgrace in the public estimation, and remarked with striking truth that the influence of the State in the Union had been dwarfed by the personal feuds and jealousies that prevailed. Hence the party that proposed to heal all such dissentions between individuals, that taught magnanimity in action, that held aloft a higher principle than that of plunder, deserved and must receive, the support of the people. In this view the selection of Mr. Buckalew as the gubernatorial candidate is of the most fortunate character. And the addresses he promises to make to the people during the canvass cannot but produce a marked effect upon the result of the campaign. As a public character Mr. Buckalew successfully challenges comparison with the first men Pennsylvania has produced.

From the Missouri Republican.

Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, has long ranked among the ablest political leaders of that State. * * * In 1863 he was elected United States Senator, and during his official term distinguished himself by his bold and judicious advocacy of Democratic principles, and was particularly remarkable for the zeal with which he urged the adoption of minority representation.

The nomination of Mr. Buckalew is undoubtedly the very strongest that could have been made; a fact which the radicals have already discovered, if we may judge from the highly significant utterances of Colonel Forney which appeared in our telegraphic column this morning, to which we direct special attention. In short, the whole ticket, including Messrs. Richard Vaux and Hendrick B. Wright for Congressmen at large, is not merely unexceptional but thoroughly excellent in all respects and there is every prospect that the Keystone State will give a good account of herself in October next.

From the Baltimore Gazette.

The speech of ex-Senator Buckalew, in acknowledgement of his nomination as the Democratic candidate for the governorship of Pennsylvania, has the true ring. Better still, the character of Mr. Buckalew stands so high in the estimation of all who know him that full confidence will be reposed in the pledges he gives, and the policy which, in the event of his election, he says he will carry out. His nomination has been received with such general satisfaction that the canvass will be carried on with more than ordinary enthusiasm on the part of the Pennsylvania Democracy, and under depressing influences on that of the Republicans. It is moreover the happy fortune of Mr. Buckalew that even his political adversaries speak well of him.

From the Trenton American.

Mr. Buckalew accepted the nomination in an eloquent and forcible speech. The manner of his reception by the convention, gave every augury of success, and showed with what vigor, unity and success the ticket made will be supported in every portion of the State.

From the Boston Commonwealth, (Rep.)

Ex-Senator Charles R. Buckalew of Pennsylvania, has been nominated by the Democrats for Governor. He is a wise and manly man, and will probably be elected. As Senator he won the respect of the best Republicans.

From the N. Y. Tribune, (Rep.)

Mr. Buckalew brings to the Executive trust training of a varied sort. He brings, too, the fruits both of practical experience and of long and laborious study. He began in the councils of the State. He was abroad in a responsible diplomatic trust—not a Muscovite exile, such as so many of inconvenient Pennsylvanians have been, but on actual responsible duty. He served six years—and they were years of trial and perplexity—from 1863 to 1869, in the Senate of the United States, and then, like Mr. Madison in the great crisis at the close of the last century, he returned to the State Legislature. It will be for his own immediate fellow citizens, his friends, and, if he has any, his enemies, to study this record, from beginning to end. We light, in one of his few elaborate speeches, by mere accident on a sentence, the application of which in the present day we leave to others. "Nepotism," said Mr. Buckalew, speaking in the Senate in 1866, "the appointment of relatives to office, or the obtaining the appointment by the use of one's official influence, is justly odious, and should be always denounced as of evil example and corruptive tendency."

But the great result of Senator Buckalew's public life, and that on which his name in history will rest, is the development and evolution of Minority Representation—that true Democratic principle of representation of the whole people, minority as well as majority, and this applicable to all public trusts from the council in the town of Bloomsburg, where it is in operation, up to Federal offices, where we hope to see it. This, we repeat, is one result of Mr. Buckalew's public life, and on that result, too, now that he solicits the suffrages of his fellow-citizens for the highest honor they can bestow, Pennsylvania has to pass. We do not permit ourselves to doubt the event.

The Old Guard.

The great county of Lancaster contains ten political papers—one Liberal, three Democratic and six Republican. On the Gubernatorial question they are as follows:

The Volksfreund, weekly, German, Republican, parades the regular Office Holders' ticket, but says little or nothing about it.

The Lancaster Examiner, Republican, weekly, published by John A. Hiestand, Naval Officer at Philadelphia, supports Hartranft.

The Columbia Spy, a Republican weekly, published by an office holder (notary public), supports Hartranft.

The Lancaster Inquirer, weekly, Republican, parades the regular ticket, including Hartranft and Allen, but openly and boldly declares that unless they withdraw these candidates and nominate better ones, overwhelming defeat awaits the party in October next. It is decidedly against Hartranft.

The Lancaster Weekly Enterprise, Republican, is openly and strongly against Hartranft, refuses to hoist the ticket, and will probably support Buckalew.

The weekly Lancaster Express, Republican, openly supports Buckalew.

The weekly Lancaster Intelligencer, Democratic, supports Buckalew.

The Columbia Herald, weekly Democratic, supports Buckalew.

The Lancaster Daily Intelligencer, Democratic, supports Buckalew.

The Lancaster Daily Express, Republican, supports Buckalew.

THE GREELEY BANNER is squarely against Hartranft, and favors the formal nomination of Buckalew and Hartley by the Liberal Republicans.

RECAPITULATION.

For Hartranft and Allen..........3
Against Hartranft and Allen and for "swapping horses"..........2
For Buckalew straight..........5

And according to our estimate of the circulation of the several papers named, not including THE GREELEY BANNER, they foot up a total number of papers circulated within this county:

For Hartranft..........5,500 papers, weekly.
Against Hartranft..........30,130 " "

including those published daily.

The Old Guard will strike from the shoulder next October and November.
Rauch's Banner.

The Republican National Convention.

This body met in Philadelphia on June 5th, at the Academy of Music which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion. The meeting was called to order by Hon. Wm. Claflin, Chairman of the National Executive Committee. Morton McMichael of Philadelphia was chosen temporary Chairman. Numerous speeches were made, three of them by colored delegates. Judge Settle, of North Carolina, was made permanent Chairman, after which the Convention adjourned until the following day.

The next day, after the Convention was called to order there was much speech making by white and colored men after which Grant was nominated for President, receiving the votes of all the delegates. The contest for the Vice Presidency terminated in favor of Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, who received 364½ votes; 321½ being cast for Colfax.

The Convention then adjourned sine die.

Gov. Pierpont of West Virginia, one of the delegates from that State to the Grant Convention in Philadelphia, seceded from his delegation just before the convention met.

He said he "had hoped, when selected without solicitation to come as a delegate to this convention, that there might be still an opportunity to save the party by the nomination of an acceptable Presidential candidate—one who would obey the laws and respect the popular will; but it is now evident that it was hoping against hope—that this is not a meeting for deliberation as to the interests of the Republican party of the country, but a meeting to obey the exacting demands of an arrogant power. Neither the admonitions of Cincinnati nor of Sumner are heeded, and it is resolved to destroy the organization to gratify mere personal government. I therefore withdraw from the delegation and give you this timely notice to fill my place. I shall then be free to give my earnest support to Horace Greeley."

NEWS

IN a game of base ball played in Philadelphia on Saturday last, for the championship, between the Athletics of Philadelphia and the Mutuals of New York, the latter were defeated by the overwhelming score of 19 to 0. This is the worst defeat known in a championship game. Not one of the Mutuals reached his third base. 6000 people witnessed the game.

The international boat race which took place in England on the Thames, on Monday last, resulted in the disastrous defeat of the American Crew—the Atalantas of New York—by the London Rowing Club.

One of, if not the best game of base ball on record was played in New York on Monday by the Boston and Mutual clubs, the former winning, after eleven innings, by a score of 3 to 2.

In due accordance with international law, the Sioux Indians have made a formal declaration of war, and 2,000 of their number are treading in the footsteps of Mars. Canada is also having trouble with her Indians.

The Lyndon bridge, on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, near Williamsport, was burned on Thursday night of last week. It was 1,100 feet long. The destruction of the bridge will not interfere with travel, as a branch road can be used.

The celebrated elephant "Romeo," one of the oldest, and said to be the largest, in the United States, valued at $30,000, died at Chicago last week. Its body has been presented to the Chicago Medical College. Its skeleton will be mounted and placed in the museum.

The strike of the mechanics in New York has assumed formidable proportions and trouble is anticipated. A non-striking carpenter was shot and killed by the strikers last week. The strike has extended to Philadelphia whose gas workers have struck and left the city in darkness. The same thing is feared in New York.

Gen. Schenk has telegraphed to the Secretary of State that the treaty is saved and that the English government would accept his pledge, given in writing, that the indirect claims were abandoned by the American government.

Obituary.

JOSEPH H. SCRANTON.

Intelligence has been received of the death at Baden-Baden, June 6, of Mr. Joseph H. Scranton, the founder of the city which bears his name. He had gone abroad in January in the delusive hope that change of air and of scene might re-establish his health, which was already precarious. Mr. Scranton was 58 years of age, and had been connected with many of the enterprises leading to the development of the resources of this valley. He was formerly President of the L. & B. R. R. At the time of his death he was President of the Lackawanna Iron & Coal Co. and of the First National Bank of Scranton, and director in various railroad, mining and manufacturing companies.

HON. THOS. WILLIAMS.

Hon. Thos. Williams ex-member of Congress died in Pittsburg on Thursday of last week. He was one of the seven managers of the House in the Impeachment of Andrew Johnson.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT.

This veteran journalist died June 1st, in the 72d year of his age at his residence, at Fort Washington, near New York city. James Gordon Bennet, Sr., was a native of Scottland, born at New Mill, Banffshire, about 1800. He was educated for the church at a Roman Catholic Seminary at Aberdeen, Scotland, but did not enter the priesthood. In April, 1819, he emigrated to the United States, and attempted, but with indifferent success, to earn a living as a teacher. In 1822 he became connected with a newspaper in Charleston, S. C., but soon removed to New York, where he was employed first as reporter, and then as assistant editor on several journals of that city, taking an active part in politics as a supporter of General Jackson. In 1830 he became associate editor of the New York Courier and Enquirer, having previously been the Washington correspondent of that journal and the first person that ever wrote newspaper letters from the capital. In 1833 he was chief editor of the Pennsylvanian, published in Philadelphia. He then removed to New York and established the New York Herald, the first number of which was issued on May 5th, 1835. This well known journal, although starting as a small sheet, in consequence of the energy, ability, and perseverance displayed by Mr. Bennett, became a newspaper of wide circulation and extended influence throughout this country and Europe. In his activity in obtaining the freshest and most important news from all quarters, and in the liberal compensation paid for seeking out the latest intelligence Mr. Bennett was unrivalled, and the Herald for thirty-seven years has been under his intelligent and unremitting supervision, and has been eminently successful.

THE Wayne Citizen, the Republican organ of Wayne county, still refuses to hoist the State ticket. Speaking of the two candidates for Governor, it says:

"The nomination of Buckalew makes it more than ever necessary to reconstruct the Republican ticket. Did the contest lie between Hartranft and Cass, the former might be successful; but as against Buckalew his chance is admitted, by those best acquainted with the situation, to be almost hopeless. The difference between the two parties, politically, is trifling compared with the difference between the candidates in point of character. In this matter the Republican party suffers under a most humiliating disadvantage. Though the number of Republicans who will vote for Buckalew may not be large, those who will not vote for Hartranft may be reckoned by thousands. Our majority in the State last year was some fifteen thousand. But we must poll a much larger vote this year, if we would be successful. Unless we do this, the vote given to Packer in 1869 will this year suffice to elect Buckalew by a majority of nearly two thousand. And unless we poll a larger vote than we cast for Geary in 1869, the vote for Seymour in 1868 will be sufficient to elect Buckalew into office by a majority of nearly twenty-three thousand. In short, Hartranft may be defeated although he receives a larger vote than Geary, and though Buckalew falls twenty thousand behind Seymour. Such a consideration should lead the Republican party to reflect seriously on its present precarious position.

WILKES-BARRE talks of celebrating the Fourth of July on an extensive scale.

A. D. Seeley of Berwick has received his commission as Lieutenant Colonel of the 17th Regiment, N. G. of Pa.

REV. A. W. SENTZ will preach in the Lutheran Church in this place next Sabbath morning and evening.

THE latest thing in Spring hats for ladies is to have the rim so bent and crumpled as to be strongly suggestive of a late champagne supper.

LAST year the rainfall from the first of January to the first of May was about sixteen inches; during the corresponding period of this year it was less than nine inches.

A CITIZEN of Selingrove says that within a few months "they burned down half of the town, traded the other half on a fire engine and gave two hundred dollars to boot."

SOME one without appreciation of music, has suggested the expediency of requiring organ grinders to pay a license for discoursing their melodies. We commend the suggestion to our Town Council.

THE pressure upon our columns last week, consequent upon the great length of the proceedings of the Convention and of new advertisements, preventing our giving as much local matter as usual.

ED. COLUMBIAN.—Is the Col. Whitmoyer spoken of in last week's Republican any kin to our stolid friend "Moike" Whitmoyer sometimes called Cap?

CURIOSITY.

TO DESTROY ANTS.—Take of flour of brimstone, half a pound, and potash four ounces. Set in an earthen pan over the fire till dissolved and united; then pulverize and make, with water, a strong solution and sprinkle where the ants frequent.

AT the recent sales of seated and unseated lands only about one third of those advertised were brought to the hammer, the greater part having been redeemed. The Commissioners bought a number of tracts.

HERE is solid comfort for beer drinkers and we commend it to their attention.

Mr. Merton, of Margate, England, is making solid beer by a patented process. Ale, porter, or brown stout may be made in a solid form, and dissolved, like yeast cakes, when wanted for use.

A cow belonging to John S. Sterner was run over by a train on the L. & B. R. R. last Saturday and one of her legs broken. The leg was bound in splints and the cow carried home on a cart, with a reasonable expectation of recovery.

A young man named Albert Very of this town shot himself through the hand on Thursday of last week, whilst carelessly handling a revolver. The ball passed through the fleshy part of the hand, but fortunately without shattering the bone.

WE are indebted to Sheriff Smith for a cluster of ripe cherries, the first of domestic growth that we have seen. If this is any indication of the cherry crop this year, there will be an abundant supply, as we have never seen more cherries growing in as compact a form and as thoroughly ripe.

IT should not at this season be forgotten that the fine for shooting robins or other insectiverous birds is $5 for each and every offence, and that having any such birds in one's possession is sufficient evidence to convict.

NOW is the peculiar season of the year when unripe vegetables will find their way into the market in an abundance more than sufficient to create an epidemic of small complaints. Too much care cannot be exercised by housekeepers in providing for their daily table.

WHEREEVER iron pipes are employed for conveying any heated medium, such as smoke, hot air, steam, or hot water, they should not be allowed to pass through woodwork unless protected by an earthen crock. The iron rust may be deoxidized, and upon re-oxidizing it often becomes red hot. Many fires have occurred from this cause.

THANKS.—At a meeting of the Friendship Fire Company, held on Thursday evening, June 6th, upon motion of Frank M. Girton, it was Resolved, That the members of the Fire Company tender their thanks to the ladies who so kindly assisted at our Festival, and also to the citizens who furnished money, &c., towards it.

WE have received the first number of The Greeley Banner a newspaper published in Lancaster in the interest, as its name implies, of Greeley and Brown. It advocates Buckalew for Governor. E. H. Rauch formerly of the Father Abraham is the editor and will undoubtedly make it a spicy and well written journal.

"The Bloomsburg Columbian "goes for" the L. & B. R. R. in rough language. The milk in that cocoanut is that Cooley got left.—Montour American.

There is something wrong in that "cocoanut" of yours, we fear, Doctor. The gentleman named was not left. We might inform you that journalists occasionally write for the public good and not for personal pique or profit—but then you would not understand any such motive, would you? So we'll say no more about it.

THE American Merchants' Union Express Company have introduced the plan of prepayments of charges on certain classes of goods by means of stamps. The stamps range in price from five to forty-five cents each, and packages weighing as much as fifteen pounds can be sent prepaid by this means.

WE have received the first number of Frank Cowan's Paper, published in Greensburg. Its editor is a son of Hon. Edgar Cowan and has inherited his father's ability and social traits. The paper favors Greeley and will doubtless do yeoman's service in his advocacy. We know Mr. Cowan and feel assured that he has the requisite brains and energy to make his venture a success.

THE present indications are very favorable for an extraordinary crop of fruit the present season. The peach, cherry, pear and apple trees have made a most remarkable show of blossoms, and the three first named have set well, while the apple trees have been fairly loaded down with blossoms. If no unforetold circumstances occur we shall be blessed with abundance of fruit next fall.

WE learn that Dr. P. John, editor of the North Carolinian and well known in this county, recently published an article which did not meet the entire approval of one of his readers. The dissappointed gentleman therefore interviewed the Dr. and the discussion must have been very tiresome as immediately after the interview the Dr. retired to his "little bed" and staid there a couple of weeks or so thinking it over. Moral; Northern habits are not always readily adopted in the South.

THE Pennsylvania State Labor Union held its annual meeting at Wilkesbarre on Tuesday, June 4th. A resolution was adopted endorsing the action of the Williamsport Convention: The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, James C. Sylvis; Vice Presidents, John Kegan and W. D. Woolslayer; Recording Secretary, Thos. K. Grevy; Corresponding Secretary, C. Ben. Johnson; Treasurer, Hon. Richard Williams.

HERE he is! We thought some profuse genius would burst forth into song over our nominations and we were right. Listen to this Warbler, whose name is unknown to us;

Now Hartranft's hopes are drooping,
The Ring can't put him through;
From hillside, heath and valley,
Comes the cry—For BUCKALEW!

Fling forth our glorious banner,
Shout to the welkin blue,
Upraise our honored standard,
We'll win with BUCKALEW.

THE following slightly incoherent account of a "frogging" party has been handed us and we publish it as received:

WE surrender a large portion of our space this week to extracts from Democratic and Republican papers relative to the nomination of Mr. Buckalew for Governor. His nomination excites unusual enthusiasm all over the State, and carries doubt to the breasts of our opponents. Let us in Columbia County not disgrace ourselves by petty divisions, and personal quarrels since this high honor has been conferred upon us, but by active, arduous work aid in making CHARLES R. BUCKALEW the next Governor of Penn'a.

THE slang reply of the reverend editor of the Republican to our article in regard to the adoption of the Holly system of water works by our Town Council evades the question, nor is there any denial of the "soft impeachment." Mr. Phillips, a member of the Danville Council, who favored the system, told us that $100, had been offered a certain editor of that place to favor the plan, and the matter became so notorious that the company had to disavow the act of their agent. We do not know that the Republican has received its $100, but it is earning it by weekly advocacy of this particular plan. The fact that we never have been approached, is due, probably, to the very fact stated by the Republican, that "having been in the Legislature," we came home with clean hands.

JAMES GREEN, a gentleman of the African persuasion, formerly resident in this town, and rather well known as possessed of convivial habits and general "cussedness," came to utter and unexpected grief in Wilkes Barre not long since. Having accepted an informal contract to drink up all the poor whisky in that town he became oblivious of earthly cares and wandered into the arms of a recruiting officer. When Mr. Green came to "hisself" the next day he discovered to his disgust and amazement that he had "listed," and was doomed for a period of years to wear the livery of Uncle Sam. St. Louis is his present abiding place, and it is not improbable that he may acquire such a distaste for fighting and for rum as to render him a good citizen hereafter.

FIRE.—Another fire broke out on Thursday morning between one and two o'clock, in Mr. Jacob Reed's buildings, between the Post Office and the canal. The old buildings were totally consumed. The one was a log building and one of the oldest in Danville. The Continental Fire Company was the first on the ground, and did good work. The steamer soon appeared and maintained its reputation. The Post Office on the one hand, and the store of Reed & Co., on the other, were saved by the engines. Brooks' tailor shop was destroyed, but most of his goods were saved. Simon Wiener's tobacco and segar store, was also consumed, as well as Mrs. Diver's residence and fancy hair work store. We learn that the parties were insured to some extent.

We regret to say that Mr. Culp, a carpenter, having taken hold of the rope attached to the steamer attempted to run with "the machine" down Mill street, but fell and was run over, by which he had both legs broken. He was taken home over the river, and it is reported he has since died. Thomas Chalfant was overcome by the smoke or excitement and fell on the pavement, in a semi-unconscious condition. He was taken home and is recovering.—Danville Independent.

THE L. & B. R. R.

Mr. W. O. Holmes, freight and ticket agent at Bloomsburg for the above corporation, takes exception to the charges preferred against the management of the road, in the COLUMBIAN, and furnishes the Republican with what he facetiously calls a "few facts." He admits that the accommodations given the people on the occasion of Barnum's show in Danville was not first-class, but explains that Barnum had engaged all the decent cars, and that "the Company gave the people the best that could be procured at the time." "The best" the Company had for passengers, paying full fare, was a lot of dirt cars with rough hemlock boards for seats. In the same breath with this admission Mr. Holmes says that there is "no road in the state which affords better accommodations for passenger travel or for freight business." Does Mr. Holmes mean seriously to say that there is a railroad in the State doing a business of over four dollars a year which could be bankrupted of passenger cars by the advent of a circus and compelled to transport ladies and gentlemen on dirt cars? Because if he does he will excuse the sensible portion of this community, not deriving their income from the L. & B. R. R., from believing him. Mr. Holmes further asserts that this Co. uses the same rates for freight as the other roads in the State. Let us see: From Shickshinny to Bloomsburg, 25 miles, the freight on coal amounts to 4½ cents per ton per mile as appears by the books of the Iron Company at this place. The Reading R. R. charge from 2 to 2½ cents per mile, as we are informed by a shipper over that road. The L. & B. R. R. charge $1 10 per ton for rail-road iron from Danville to Bloomsburg—a distance of about ten miles—being in the neighborhood of eleven cents per mile. A gentlemen in town recently had a lot of salt in a car at Rupert which he wished the Co. to bring to Bloomsburg; they asked him $8 for so doing, and he was obliged to hire teams to haul it, for which he paid $3! The distance is a trifle over a mile and three-quarters. Again; a lot of marble was shipped here from Philadelphia, the charges on which to Northumberland were $5 for 161 miles, but from Northumberland here, 21 miles, the charges were $8! Again; a lot of glass ware was sent from Pittsburg to Philadelphia, thence returned to Northumberland, a total distance of 516 miles, over the Pennsylvania R. R., and the charges were $7 76 but from Northumberland to Bloomsburg, 21 miles, the price charged was $4 68—60 per cent of the amount for 516 miles. Had the same rates prevailed to Pittsburg the charges would have amounted to something over $100!! There are yet other cases in our possession which we might enumerate, but it is needless. The instances are sufficient to corroborate fully the charge made in the COLUMBIAN that "the freights are simply outragous." And yet at these excessive rates, the cars are often furnished grudgingly or not at all and the Iron Company have absolutely lost sales of iron from want of cars in which to ship. Mr. Drinker of the Bloomsburg Iron Co. testified in his examination before the Committee on the Judiciary General of the Senate in relation to the Anthracite Coal difficulties, (Report of Committee p. 208) that "We send our pig iron to Rupert in summer by canal and in winter haul it in wagons; we find it cheaper than sending it over the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg railroad company; the railroad company charges 40 cents per ton from Bloomsburg to Rupert; the distance is about two miles"—by the Co's. schedule it is 1.77 miles.—There's cheapness!

A very good idea of the manner in which the Co. do business may be derived from the testimony of David T. Bound, the former Supt. of the road, before this same Senate Committee. We submit it; the point under discussion was the switching and changes at Danville over a private road.

"By Mr. Hall. Q. Does your charter allow you to do that?"

A. "I don't know anything about that."

Q. "You are charging without knowing anything about the law?"

A. "I presume we have a right to do it."

(Report of the Committee p. 70.)

The Co. being relieved by special law from the rates prescribed by the act of 1849, for distances under five miles "presume that they have a right" to charge anything they please and so arrange their rates that they exceed the limits of charges and assume somewhat the shape of petty larceny.

The Co. alleged that the limitation of four and sixteen-hundredths cents per ton per mile is confined to freight carried in cars of others, thus leaving them at liberty to charge what they choose when carrying in their own cars. But your Committee are of opinion that this charge cannot be justified under the terms of the law. (Report of Committee p. 10.)

Mr. Holmes may be honest in his convictions that there is "no road in the State which affords better accommodations for passenger travel or for freight business" than the L. & B. but he speaks from his own experience which is obviously very limited. Whenever he desires to furnish the COLUMBIAN with facts it would be well for him to assure himself that they are such before putting them in print, but our advice to him, meant in the most kindly way, is to attend strictly to his official duties and not burden himself with the defense of such a greedy, selfish, and unaccommodating monopoly as the Lackawanna & Bloomsburg R. R. Company.

NOTICE! We purpose laying the cornerstone of the Methodist Protestant Church, near George Dodson's School House in Benton township Columbia county Pa. on the 22d of June at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Joseph Watrous, President of the Central Pa. Conf., Rev. Mr. Russel, of Scranton Pa. Rev. John White of Ashley Pa. Rev. Wilson of Town Hill Pa. and Rev. Thomas Dodson of New Columbus, Pa. are to be present and add to the interest of the occasion. The public are cordially invited, come one! come all!

A. E. KLINE Pastor.

REOPENING.—Kind Providence permitting the Welch Church situated near Numedia, Columbia County, which has been lately enlarged and refitted will be reopened on the 23d of June as a United Brethren Church. Bishop J. Weaver from Baltimore, Md., is expected to officiate. We cordially invite all who can to be with us and cheer the brethren in their noble work. Our two quarterly meetings will be held at the same place, on Saturday, the 22d, at 2 P. M. Geo. W. M. Rigon, P. E., will be present.

SAMUEL RITZMAN GIPPLE,
Pastor in charge.

SOME editor who has evidently made the subject a study, propounds the following, which we fancy can be answered in the affirmative:—"Is it not a little amusing to see an officer trying to "reason" with a roistering, roaring, drunken blackguard with so much poor whiskey on board that he doesn't know whether he is on foot or horseback?"

CLEANSING HAIR BRUSHES.—To cleanse a hair brush, take a basin of cold suds, add a spoonful of spirits of ammonia, put in the brush, and draw a coarse comb through the bristles as many times as necessary; a cloth too may be used to help the cleansing.—Finally rinse in clear water.

FARM FACTS.—It is stated in the agriculture returns, by the census of 1870, received at Washington, that the cash value of the farms of Pennsylvania is $1,043,481,582. Our State produces 19,672,967 bushels of wheat; 34,702,026 of corn; 36,478,585 of oats. The number of horses in Pennsylvania is 460,339, and the value of all the live stock in the State is $115,647,075.

A meeting of the members of the Bar of Columbia County was held in the Court House on Monday last to take suitable action with regard to the death of Geo. A. Frick Esq. of Danville, who died suddenly on Sunday in the 85th year of his age. Mr. Frick was admitted to practice on the 2d of April, 1821, and was the oldest member of the bar of this county at the time of his death.

On motion of Col. Freeze, Mr. Buckalew was elected Chairman, and, on motion of Mr. Thompson, Capt. Brockway was chosen Secretary.

Col. Freez then stated the object of the meeting and gave a brief sketch of Mr. Frick's life. He offered the following preamble and resolutions which were adopted:

WHEREAS, The members of the Bar of Columbia county have been apprised of the sudden death of George A. Frick, Esq., at the time of his decease the oldest member of the Bar of this County; and of which said County he was also the first Prothonotary, having been appointed to that office by Gov. Simon Snyder, on the organization of the County in 1813, and continued until his admission to the Bar in 1821, in the exercise of its duties, therefore,

Resolved, That we have heard with unfeigned sorrow of the death of George A. Frick, Esq., who during many years of a busy professional life proved himself to be an able lawyer, a thorough gentleman, an honest and an upright man.

Resolved, That we tender to his mourning family and relatives our sincere condolences in their afflictions.

Resolved, That we will attend the funeral in a body, and wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings and Resolutions be sent to Col. A. J. Frick, Danville, Penn'a.

Swine Running at Large.

The following act to prevent swine from running at large in the townships of Benton and Fishingcreek and in the town of Light Street was approved by the Governor on the 23d of March last.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c., That so much of the provisions of the act entitled "An Act to prevent horses, cattle, mules, sheep and swine from running at large in Forks township in the county of Sullivan," approved March eighth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, as relates to swine, be and the same are hereby extended to the townships of Benton and Fishingcreek and to the town of Light Street in the county of Columbia.

SEC. 2. For the purposes of this act the limits of the town of Light Street aforesaid shall be as follows, namely; beginning at the north west corner of Scott township in the said county of Columbia and thence east one hundred and sixty rods to a road, thence southeast three hundred rods to a bridge at Keller's run, thence westwardly down said run to its mouth, two hundred and forty rods, thence north two hundred and eighty rods to the place of beginning, touching the line of Mount Pleasant township.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c., That from and after the passage of this act all horses, mules, cattle, sheep and swine belonging to farmers, or other persons, found running at large beyond the premises of the owner or upon the public roads or highways in the township of Forks, Sullivan county, shall be considered in the character of strays, and may be taken up as such by any person, and shall and may be disposed of under existing laws of this commonwealth relating to strays, if such person shall see proper to prosecute the same.

It will then be seen that swine running in the townships above named are subject to the general laws regulating estrays.

DOTY—In Benton twp. John C. Doty, aged 68 years, 4 months and 3 days.

HESS—On June 2d 1872, Jenny, Blanche daughter of Joshua B. and Adda Hess, aged 1 year, 9 months and 21 days.

Oh cease, fond parents, cease to weep,
For Jennie sits at Jesus feet,
With palms of victory in her hand
She sings the praises of the Lamb.

If Jennie could speak from her home on high
She would say let every tear be dry,
I am happier far in my Heavenly home
Than on the weary earth to roam.

You'll miss me very much I know,
And oft the bitter tear will flow,
But from such sorrow oh refrain
Your loss is my eternal gain.

But tell to all the story
Of your Jennie now in glory,
That in the Heavenly land I sing,
Hosannah's to my Heavenly King.

Farewell dear parents, for a while,
May you enjoy the Saviour's smile
And when from earth your spirits soar
We'll meet again to part no more.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Read Dr. Nye's Notices.

Another large lot of shoes just received at E. M. Knorr's.

E. M. Knorr sells the best Calf Boot in town for $6.75.

Get a pair of Dr. Nye's Gold Spectacles; they are the best out. Look at them at Brown's Hotel.

The largest assortment of colored silks, silk poplins, imported and American black silks in Bloomsburg is at M. P. Lutz's.

Every body says that E. M. Knorr has the best and the cheapest in town.

The best Ladies' Gaiters can be had at E. M. Knorr's.

TEAS! TEAS.—Great Reduction in price at Maize's Mammoth Grocery, Cor. Main and Center Street.

The Singer Sewing Machines in daily use prove to be what the agents represent them, the best ever known. Their sales in this county last month was twice as many as all others.
On the lease plan ten dollars cash; balance in monthly installments.

If you want a good double combined corn plow, go to S. Huber & Son, Danville, Pa. Farmers pronounce it the best in the market, for lightness of draught and for good work. 22-4w

QUEENSWARE, the largest stock in this section of the State, of all descriptions at Maize's Mammoth Grocery, for sale at the low rates at which he has been selling although the prices have advanced twenty-five per cent. in the Eastern Cities. n23-2t

The finest assortment of Foreign and Domestic Fruits, always to be found, in season, at Maize's Mammoth Grocery. Strawberries, Pineapples, Bananas, Oranges, Lemons, Figs, Dates, Raisins, Nuts of all kinds &c now on hand, Fresh vegetables of all kinds. n23-2t.

Interest on the Pacific R. R. bonds, 7 3-10 per cent payable in gold, will be paid by the Bloomsburg Banking Co. on and after July 1st.

OLD FOLKS! READ!!!—Dr. Alex. S. Nye from Scranton, the celebrated Optician, has taken rooms at Brown's Hotel for one week, where everybody troubled with defective sight should call and procure a pair of his Australian Crystal Spectacles and Eye Glasses. They are easy to wear, will never tire the eyes and last many years without changing. Dr. Nye understanding the optical business thoroughly will warrant to fit the most difficult case with ease, and refers amongst others whom he has fitted, in this valley, to the following gentlemen: Mr. M. W. Jackson, Berwick, Mr. Wm. Lamon, Mr. Bouton, Scranton, Dr. Robins, Catawissa, Mr. Miller, Berwick.
All goods warranted as represented. Glasses refitted in old frames, at reasonable rates.
For particulars see hand bills.

In 1832, Walter Hunt discovered the shuttle for forming the lock stitch in sewing machines. Since that time many improvements have been made but none equal to those applied to the Singer, that of direct action on the needle bar and upright shaft from the horrizontal. This principal has been fully tested more than twenty years, and the people have found it always reliable. Two thousand a week more of them are sold than any other shuttle machine.

Old Established Coal Yard.

C. W. NEAL & BRO. Wholesale & Retail Dealers in all sizes of the best qualities of Red and White Ash Coal, at the very lowest market rates. Large stocks of all sizes constantly on hand. Strict personal attention given to the preparation of all our coal. Grain, Lumber and Slabs taken in exchange for coal. Coal delivered to any part of the town. Orders left at McKelvy Neal & Co's. store or at our office, will receive prompt attention. OFFICE & YARDS AT MCKELVY & NEAL'S FURNACE, EAST BLOOMSBURG. Your patronage respectfully solicited.

THE BAR ROOM REMEDY for weakness of the stomach is a dose of Rum Bitters. They are surcharged with Fusel Oil, a deadly element, which is rendered more active by the pungent astringents with which it is combined. If your stomach is weak, or your liver or bowels disordered, tone, strengthen and regulate them with VINEGAR BITTERS, a pure VEGETABLE STOMACHIC, CORRECTIVE AND APERIENT, free from alcohol, and capable of infusing new vitality into your exhausted and disordered system. n22-4w.

CASTORIA.—a substitute for Castor Oil—a family physic which is pleasant to take and does not distress or gripe, but is sure to operate when all other remedies have failed. It is a purely vegetable preparation, containing neither Minerals, Morphine nor Alcohol, the result of fifteen years experimenting by Doctor Samuel Pitcher. It is perfectly harmless and far more effective than Pills, Narcotic Syrups or Castor Oil. By soothing the system it produces natural sleep, and is particularly adapted to crying or teething children. It kills Worms, cures Stomach Ache, Constipation Flatulency and Derangement of the Liver. No family can afford to be without this article. It costs but 50 cents—ask your druggist to get it for you, and he will always keep it. 4w

SIXTEEN YEARS OF SUCCESS.—In 1856 the now famous MUSTANG LINIMENT was first made known to the public by an extensive system of advertising. From that time to the present, the demand for it has been steadily increasing, until it has taken the lead of all embrocations, lotions, ointments, and other external remedies, imported or domestic, ever introduced into the American market. In the most celebrated racing and trotting stables, in the establishments of stage and city car companies, and in the stables of private gentlemen, it is the only recognized cure for such diseases of the horse as require outward treatment. Nor is it less valuable as a local application for some of the most distressing complaints to which man is subject. Rheumatism, stiffness of the joints, neuralgia, sore throat, tumors, wens, earache, toothache, yield to its pain-subduing, counter-irritant properties, and burns, scalds and cuts are healed with incredible rapidity under its operation.

DELICATE CREATURES.—This is the phrase applied by His Blackness, the Moor of Venice, to the fair ladies of Italy. It was the lovely complexion of Desdemona, such a radiant contrast to his own, that won his heart; and sooth to say, every man of discernment considers a fair skin, like a sweet voice, "an excellent thing in woman." Now this is a charm which can be acquired. There is a healthful and odoriferous toilet article, known everywhere as HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM, which literally transfigures a cloudy or sallow skin, suffusing the discolored face, neck, arms and bosom with a soft, pearly tinge, and imparting to the surface a smoothness and a gloss like that of polished marble. Instead of clogging the pores, like the sticky enamels, or contracting them, and thus obstructing perspiration, like the astringent cosmetics, it cleanses the skin from all impurities and wonderfully improves its texture. This peculiarity is particularly appreciated by our rural belles, who find that the coarseness and roughness, which country air is apt to engender, are speedily removed from their faces, hands and arms, by this delightful preparation.

A PITIFUL CONDITION.—It is a sad thing to pass through life only half alive. Yet there are thousands whose habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific disease; they suffer no positive pain; but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensuous pleasure. In nine cases out of ten this state of lassitude and torpor arises from a morbid stomach. Indigestion destroys the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular assimilation of the food, every organ is starved, every function interrupted.
Now, what does common sense suggest under these circumstances of depression? The system needs rousing and strengthening; not merely for an hour or two, to sink afterward into a more pitiable condition than ever (as it surely would do if an ordinary alcoholic stimulant were resorted to) but radically and permanently.
How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unvarying experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Do not waste time by administering temporary remedies, but wake the system up by recuperating the fountain head of physical strength and energy, the great organ upon which all the other organs depend for their nature and support.
By the time that a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and invigorant have been taken the feeble frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its benign influence. Appetite will be created, and with appetite the capacity to digest what it craves. Persevere until the cure is complete—until healthful blood, fit to be the material of flesh and muscle, bone and nerve and brain flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery pabulum with which they have heretofore been imperfectly nourished. June 7—1w

Important Testimony!

The following letters are among the many we are constantly receiving from persons who have been cured by

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup,
Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic,
AND
Schenck's Mandrake Pills.

Pennsgrove, Salem County, New Jersey,
FEBRUARY 27, 1872.

Dr. J. H. SCHENCK, N. E. corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia.

Respected Sir—I take pleasure in adding my testimony to that of the many others who have been cured by the efficacy of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills.

Consumption has been hereditary with my family, most of its members having died of it at early ages. My mother and three brothers died at the age of 31, one brother at 27, and my sister at 13.

I was, when about 31 years, seized with liver complaint, which rapidly developed into Pulmonary Consumption. I was compelled to relinquish my employment (that of a blacksmith.)

I consulted skillful and eminent physicians, and tried many patent nostrums, but without success, so that my friends were sure that there was no hope of my recovery, for I was reduced from 140 pounds to 104, and was not able to do anything without assistance.

By what I now look upon as a Providential interposition, I was induced to try your remedies, and place myself under your treatment, and so rapid and thorough was my recovery, that it seemed as though some supernatural power was at work, and to-day I am as well as at any time during my life. I weigh 152 pounds, am 33 years old, and for some time have been regularly attending to my business, bidding fair to live to a good old age.

I am thankful to you beyond expression for having placed me in a position wherein I am a benefit instead of a burden to my family.

Your Mandrake Pills are the only medicine I ever use now. I think they are the best in the world.

I can refer you to hundreds of my neighbors who will verify all I have written, and any information any of my fellow citizens may desire will be freely and gladly given, upon receipt of stamp, by Yours, etc.
JOHN C. HEWITT.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 19, 1872.

Dr. J. H. SCHENCK, N. E. cor. Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia.

Dear Sir—Please forward, per first steamer, six bottles Sea Weed Tonic and twelve bottles Pulmonic Syrup.

Your medicines are of such value that I cannot be without them in my household, and in fact no family should be without them.

I have given them a fair test, and openly declare them to be even better than you claim.
Very respectfully yours, &c
W. A. WHITEHURST.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4, 1872.

Dr. J. H. SCHENCK,

Respected Sir—I take pleasure in awarding to you this certificate of the wonderful cure your Pulmonic Syrup and Sea Weed Tonic produced. My throat and bronchial tubes were so highly inflamed that it was almost impossible for me to swallow my food.

I am on a visit to my uncle, Mr. Charles Johnson, No. 912 Federal street, who says your medicines raised him from almost death after all other means had failed, and he having, therefore, full confidence in the virtue of your remedies, strongly recommended me to try them. I did so, and in one week from the time I commenced taking them my throat underwent a very great change for the better, so that I could eat my meals without any difficulty or pain. I can scarcely find words to express my gratitude for the early relief your invaluable medicines produced upon me, and I deem it but an act of gratitude to give you the acknowledgement of my appreciation. Yours respectfully,
RACHEL M. JACOBS,
No. 456 West Thirty-third street, New York.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,
SEA WEED TONIC,
and MANDRAKE PILLS.

These are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Dr. Schenck has been in constant practice over thirty years continually examining lungs, and knows his medicines, if properly taken, will cure Consumption. His Mandrake Pills cleanse the liver and stomach; his Sea Weed Tonic dissolves the food, stimulates the coating of the stomach, and makes it digest. His Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter, and nature throws it off without any exertion.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea Weed Tonic, $1,50 per bottle, or $7 50 per half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents per box.

Agricultural.

How to Feed Chickens and What to Give Them.—Corn, wheat screenings, and occasionally coarse meal, scalded and mixed with hot water, make up heir food. I never give them corn meal mixed with cold water—don't believe in it—in fact I think that is one source of their sickness and disease. All their food is better for them cooked—but cooking of corn and wheat implies trouble. So it does—but it pays to do it—and does anything pay without trouble? However, let me say—whether you feed on raw corn or not—never feed on raw cornmeal. Now, when I feed my plan is to walk all over the yard—about half an acre—and scatter the food right and left (two grains never fall in the same spot) and immediately you see the whole army scatter themselves as skirmishers, and the yard presents, for an hour and more, somewhat the appearance of an upturned ant hill. I never give them as much as they can eat; they always leave off hungry. By my system of scattering the food—old and young, weak and strong, small and large—all get their chance and share, and all are kept so busily and actively employed that the very process of feeding stirs them about, and keeps them from being too lazy to move about. Clean water (you see I emphasize the clean part) they must have free to all. Drinking foul standing water kills more chikens than nine-tenths of us raise. Occasionally in summer I drop a lump of lime into the water and let them try the lime water, and also make them cayenne pills whenever I notice them drooping or their discharges showing symptoms of diarrhoea. Gapes come from drinking foul water, living in dirty quarters, and want of good food, properly given. The best cure for this and all other diseases chicken flesh is heir to, is prevention—in this case, an ounce of prevention being worth a good many pounds of cure. Give them good wholesome food, healthy, clean quarters, pay some decent regard to their comfort, and my word for it, they will make you rejoice in the profitable gratitude they return you—you will be but little troubled with cholera grapes, or any other pest, except the miserable chicken thief, and the best cure for him is a spring gun, properly arranged to dose him when he makes his marauding attempt. —Rural Register.

Keep the Cattle Growing.

The most successful breeders of horses, cattle, sheep, or swine, know from experience that although they may possess the best breeding animals, they will not be successful in producing superior stock if a continuous growth of the young animals is not kept up. In order to begin in time at this indispensable preparation for success, the brood mares, cows, ewes and sows are most carefully and suitably fed while with young, and as soon as the young animals make their appearance, they are taken the greatest care of, the dams being suitably fed while suckling, and when the young ones are weaned they are not supposed to want for food or drink a single hour. By this means a continuous or rapid growth is kept up and the animals attain a large size and heavy weight at an early age. When breeding animals are not properly fed and comfortably sheltered in Winter, the bad effect of such treatment is not confined to their own want of condition—it is shared by their progeny, and can never be remedied.—When young stock are not well fed and comfortably sheltered in Winter, their growth becomes stunted, and no subsequent amount of good treatment can repair the damage. Young animals may suffer for want of proper provender in Summer and Autumn, as well as in Winter, and when this happens it stops continous growth and prevents ultimate uccess in the object of the breeder.

No Profit in Milking too Long.—It is generally thought best, so far as my knowledge extends, to let dairy cows go dry three, or at least, two months. My own experience would give three months as about the best average length of time cows should go dry before dropping their calves in spring: and this I find best without regard to the general health of the animal or the amount of milk to be produced the following season. Cows that are milked too long, either get thin in flesh, and give but little milk, and that little of poor quality, or else require a large amount of nutritious food to keep up a good supply of milk and the animal in good flesh. My rule is to feed liberally as long as I do milk, and when a cow gives less than two quarts of good wholesome milk, dry her off and lessen the feed. A dry cow needs about two thirds the amount of fodder required by a cow of the same size which gives milk, so that there is no present profit in milking too long, unless dairy products are very high, to say nothing of the damage by impairing the future usefulness of he cow.—Country Gentleman.

The Scientific Press quotes the testimony of a gentleman in San Francisco with regard to the value of fresh eggs in affording nourishment to weak animals. He remarked that he had known a young colt which to all appearances was nearly dead, the breath of life being barely perceptible, to be quite instantly revived by giving it one or two fresh eggs. The same results, in several cases to which he was knowing, have followed the administering of eggs to weak calves, and also to feeble and chilled lambs. A remedy so simple, so easy at hand and so effectual in the cases mentioned—which often occur with calves and lambs—should be remembered by our readers.

Horses Breaking Bridles.—A correspondent of the Queenslander says he cures horses of the habit of pulling at the halter in this way: "My plan to cure a horse of bridle-breaking is, to fasten or tie him up in a place, where he cannot run back, with a strong leather head-collar—not a halter—and when the bridle is put upon him, turn him around in the stall and fasten him for an hour every day with reins fastened to the stall posts and then buckled on to his bit. This plan will be found a cure, and a very gentle and not disagreeable operation for the horse.

Col. S. D. Harris speaks of an Ohio farm which, when the present proprietor took possession, a few years ago, contained an old-turf-bound orchard, the fruit always small and wormy. He turned in a lot of hogs and has let then cultivate it ever since. The result is good crops of fair apples, all free from worms.

Young Folks.

Story of Two Dogs.

In a tan-yard, in a little town of England, there were two dogs. One was a small dog, of the spaniel kind, whose name was Carlo. The other was a large strong watch-dog, and his name was Ponto. Carlo was not a good-tempered dog, but was cross and ugly, and he seemed to have taken a great dislike to Ponto. He never cared to play with him, and would snap and snarl when he came near him, and always showed an ugly feeling toward him. Ponto didn't seem to care much for it, but he kept out of Carlo's way, in a dignified sort of manner, as if he would say:

"Well, Mr. Carlo, if you can get along without me, I am sure I can do very well without you."

One day Carlo was playing about in the yard, and somehow or other he slipped into one of the pits which was very nearly full of water. Of course he could swim well, as all other dogs can. But the water was not high enough for him to reach the top, and as the sides of the pit were too steep and smooth for him to catch hold of anything with his feet, it was impossible for him to get out by himself. So he went swimming round and round the pit, whining and yelping all the time for some one to come and help him. But it so happened that none of the workmen were there to help him, and Carlo would certainly have been drowned had it not been for Ponto.

He heard the cry of distress from the ill-natured friend, and went at once to see what he could do to help him. As soon as he came to the pit, and saw how things were, he reached over and caught hold of Carlo by the neck with his teeth, and dragged him out.

Carlo shook himself, and then went frisking and jumping about Ponto, as if to show his gratitude.

He had no power to speak his feelings, but he tried by his actions, as well as he could, to say:

"I am very much obliged to you for saving my life. I feel ashamed of myself for having been so cross and ill-natured to you; but I never mean to do so any more," and Carlo was as good as his word, if he had been able to say all this to Ponto. He never seemed to forget his kindness to him, but would wag his tail and jump about, and seem very glad when ever he met Ponto.

So that even dogs know how to return good for evil. Children who do not do this are therefore, worse than dogs.

The Kind Conductor.

It is a pleasure to say something to the credit of an individual who belongs to that much abused class of our community, horse-car conductors, whom people like to believe dishonest. On the morning of the Fourth, a little girl riding to Boston tendered to a conductor for fare, a dingy-looking scrip, of the denomination of twenty-five cents. He took it, looked at it, said "Counterfeit!" and returned it to her.

Evidently judging by her appearance that it was all she had, he added, "Never mind; let it go till next time."

But the girl was mortified by the circumstance, and, her eyes brimming with tears, she turned her face away. A lady standing near remarked, "Her Fourth of July is spoiled."

The conductor heard her, and, hesitating but a moment, said to the girl, "Let's see that money again."

She handed it to him, and then he took from his pocket the brightest, newest, twenty-five cent scrip he could find, and gave it to her in exchange. When he saw her countenance expressing the thanks she could not utter, we have no doubt that he felt amply rewarded, and we will wager quite an amount that his wearisome labors that day were very much lightened by his little act of kindness.

A True Hero.

A boy about nine years old was bathing one day, when, by some mischance, he got into deep water and began to sink. His elder brother saw him, but lacking strength or skill, he also sank to the bottom of the river. As the two drowning brothers rose to the surface for the last time, they saw a third brother, the youngest of the family, running down the bank for the purpose of trying to save them. Then it was that the dying nine-year-old acted the part of the hero. Struggling as he was with death, he gathered all his strength, and cried to the brother on the shore, "Don't come. You'll drown."

Noble little fellow! Though dying he forgot himself, and thought only of his father's grief. He was a genuine hero. His brother obeyed his dying command, and was spared to comfort his father when his two dead sons were taken from the river clasped in each other's arms.

Boys, you are not called to be heroes in this way, but you are called to consider the feelings of your parents, and to study how to avoid giving them pain. The best way to do this is to love them dearly. Love will not only keep you from hurting their feelings, but it will make you sources of great joy to their hearts. Blessed are those children whose words and deeds make sweet music in their parents' souls.

The "Silver Rule."—You all know the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would wish them to do to you." There is a rule which is almost a part of the Golden Rule, but which we will put by itself, and because of its value, call it the "Silver Rule." "Think and say all you can of the good qualities of others; forget and keep silent concerning their bad qualities. You can not conceive how much such a course will heighten your own happiness, and raise you in the esteem of your mates. Did you ever think any more of a boy or girl becase he or she found fault with others? Never call your schoolmates or playmates ugly, or cross, neither to their faces nor behind their backs. If they are ugly, or stingy, or cross, ti does not make them better to talk or think about it, while it makes you love to dwell upon faults of others, and causes your own soul to grow smaller, and you become like the foul bird that prefers carrion for food.

The following composition has been turned out by an American scholar, aged 15: "A boy without a father is an horphan, without a mother, a double horphan, but is offenest without a grandfather and a grandmother, and then he is an horphanist."

This instrument is especially designed for the perfect application of
DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY.
It is the only form of instrument yet invented with which fluid medicine can be carried high up and perfectly applied to all parts of the affected nasal passages, and the chambers or cavities communicating therewith, in which sores and ulcers frequently exist, and from which the catarrhal discharge generally proceeds. The want of success in treating Catarrh heretofore has arisen largely from the impossibility of applying remedies to these cavities and chambers by any of the ordinary methods. This obstacle in the way of effecting cures is entirely overcome by the invention of the Douche. In using this instrument, the Fluid is carried by its own weight) no snuffing, forcing or pumping being required.) up one nostril in a full gently flowing stream to the highest portion of the nasal passages, passes into and thoroughly cleanses all the tubes and chambers connected therewith, and flows out of the opposite nostril. Its use is pleasant and so simple that a child can understand it. Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with this instrument, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures recent attacks of "Cold in the Head" by a few applications.
Symptoms of Catarrh. Frequent headache, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, thick mucus, purulent, offensive, &c. In others a dryness, dry, watery, weak or inflamed eyes, stopping up or obstruction of nasal passages, ringing in ears, deafness, hawking and coughing to clear throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired or total deprivation of sense of smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, loss of appetite, indigestion, enlarged tonsils, tickling cough, &c. Only a few of these symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.
Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, and accompanied with the constitutional treatment which is recommended in the pamphlet that wraps each bottle of the Remedy, is a perfect specific for this loathsome disease, and the proprietor offers, in good faith, $500 reward for a case he can not cure. The Remedy is mild and pleasant to use, containing no strong or caustic drugs or poisons. The Catarrh Remedy is sold at 50 cents, Douche at 60 cents, by all Druggists, or either will be mailed by proprietor on receipt of 60 cents.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Grateful thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist: There is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Mechanical Diseases. Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, will be subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters once or twice a week, as a Preventive.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goiter, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all these cases in a similar manner. By purifying the Blood they remove the cause, and by resolving away the effects of the inflammation (the tubercular deposits) the affected parts receive health, and a permanent cure is effected.

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic and Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.
